"...with great opportunities comes great responsibility".

PRESIDENT'S FLYBOX

SCOTT
OLSON

WILL THEY BE THERE?

One of the things that I and my angling buddies always look forward to at the opening of the trout season is the chance to cast to big spawners making their way up the Crowley tributaries attempting to create another generation of lively salmonids.

This is the time of year when the big cutthroats (and sometimes rainbows) move up out of the depths of the eastern Sierra lochs in to the relatively shallow waters of the lakes feeder creeks (only in the arid West would you get away with calling the Owens a "river"). Watching them alone is a thrill, but casting to them is an even bigger thrill. You rarely get the chance during the season to catch a 5 lb. plus trout in two feet of water.

However with great opportunities comes great responsibility (apologies Spiderman's uncle Ben) and we have an obligation to not cast to spawning fish. When the fish are on the redds your fly should not be in the water. There are plenty of times when the fish are resting along the banks or in the deeper pools that will allow ample opportunity to angle for them. And if you do hook one of these plucky progenitors please land it quickly and take the time to properly revive it before releasing, as these fish are pretty tuckered out.

So this year if you happen to be lucky enough to spot those big spawners while you are enjoying the opening of the season please remember we are all stewards of this fantastic resource and it is incumbent on us as responsible anglers to pass on this treasured gift untainted to future generations of fly casters.

Tight lines and fighting fish to all!

Scott Olson, Conejo Valley Fly Fishers, President

TAP-TAP, SWING...MISS | TAP-TAP, SET...CONNECT...

LIKE A GOLF SHOT, it's a feeling that comes from experience--there is no substitute for time on the water. But there may be a shortcut.

I AM LUCKY AND FISH WITH A LOT OF DIFFERENT PEOPLE. Anglers who can take a fly rod and make it into a magic wand – you know the type. They always know what to fish and where to fish it. Others I spend time with are not so efficient--but nonetheless, enjoyable to accompany. Sometimes, they are actually more fun to be with as their expectations seem lower; they're not headhunting, and just the act of hooking, then landing a fish is all they need. Pure joy.

BUT HOW DO YOU EXPONENTIALLY TIP THE ODDS of more hook ups in your favor if you don't have the experience of, or the ability to, put in more time? How do you skip the hours and capture that feeling of hooking a fish, so you can jump to the front of the line and get that feeling more often, and build that skill set of hooking and landing that special trout?

I HAVE FOUND IT,
AND IT'S SIMPLE:
SHARP HOOKS. THAT'S IT.

A SHARP HOOK WILL SERVE YOU IN SEVERAL WAYS: at times it will make up for your slow reflexes and “catch” the trout in the mouth as the poor bastard attempts to spit out the fly. A sharp hook will also penetrate deeper into those hard parts of their mouth area – the mandible and maxillary and “hold” better during the impending tug of war. I think there's an honorable angle also – I liken it to my experience with being cut with a very sharp knife – it seems to go unnoticed, more so than being cut with a dull knife. Maybe it's a stretch but I feel we should lionize our quarry, and do everything in our control to serve the trout and honor its position while we inconvenience it.

I KEEP A SMALL ARKANSAS POCKET STONE IN MY VEST. I go through my ritual: select the fly, tie on the fly then sharpen the hook. Two or three strokes along the side of the hook is all I need to keep that hook razor sharp. If the hook is larger than a 16, I'll take a pass at the front of hook also, as sometimes there's a little burr that slants one way or another; if this is your situation then you've applied too much pressure. Easy to fix though--just pass a couple of times on that burr and it'll wear off.

GIVE IT A TRY. You will gain an advantage, and maybe that's all you'll need to make your season.

Commit to giving yourself to a small mountain stream this year. It will be time well spent and not deducted.

CDFW Inland Trout Angling Regulation Simplification Reprint with permission from Jon Hart (SPFF)

Edited/updated by: Cece Rubin

The CDFW is proposing a series of updates to the regulations that govern inland trout angling.

Everything is listed at (LINK) which includes the specific changes to specific waters and a description of the process for counter proposals.

The bad news is that many of our favorite waters for trout fishing are having their protections reduced or in some cases dropped to the lowest level.

TROUT UNLIMITED created a helpful LINK that shows the current and proposed regulations for most waters side by side for easier understanding. The good news is that the CDFW is working with the public and have already amended their proposal towards regulations that are more agreeable.

It is critical that our members take the time to read and understand the new regulations and propose reasonable counter regulations using the CDFW comment form (LINK) BY MAY 3, 2019.

Your suggestions must be clear, professional, justified and use options from the CDFW provided "menu" of 6 possible seasons and 6 gear/take restrictions.

We encourage you to do this for any and all waters, specifically listed or otherwise.

READ JON'S email with MORE Information on specific waters on our site | click here.

Protect Pier Fishing – Report Unlawful Local Regulations!

Today, California ranks dead last in fishing participation, despite its vast coastline and thousands of lakes and rivers. This is unacceptable, and illegal regulations are a contributing factor! Please report local abuse by providing us the name of the municipality that is limiting access, gear and manner of take, and provide copies of the regulations or ordinances to info@savefishing.com.

Like the City of Manhattan Beach, local government has been known to limit fishing gear and manner of take, or have imposed outright fishing bans! Together, we can grow access and increase participation in one of California's favorite pastimes, recreational fishing. Thank you for your assistance. READ MORE

WHY IS IT IMPORTANT THAT WE RECOVER SOUTHWESTERN TROUT?

- APRIL/MAY 2019 | The challenge for all of us who care about imperiled native trout is to answer the “so what” question? So what if they are in decline. So what if they become extinct? Native fish are our “canary in the coal mine”—their health indicates how well we are caring for the lands, waters and climate that sustain us. As they go, so do we.
